Non-bailable arrest warrant issued against former Pakistan PM Nawaz Sharif

LAHORE, SEPT 3/--/ A Pakistani court today directed the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to execute a non-bailable arrest warrant against former Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif in a 34-year land allotment case, according to media reports. During the plot allotment hearing, Model Town Police Inspector Bashir Ahmed told Lahore Accountability Court's Judge Asad Ali that Sharif was not at his residence.

Last month, the accountability court had issued a bailable arrest warrant and served summons at all known addresses of the three-time prime minister, who is currently in London for medical treatment. Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PMN-N) leader Ata Tarar confirmed to the court on Thursday that the 70-year-old party chief Sharif had been abroad for six months, the Express Tribune newspaper reported.

Responding to this, Special Prosecutor Harris Qureshi, appearing on behalf of the National Accountability Bureau (NAB), asked the court to issue a non-bailable arrest (NBA) warrant against Sharif. The court issued the NBA warrant and directed the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA) to execute the arrest through the Pakistan High Commission in London, the report added. Jang/Geo media group owner Mir Shakilur Rehman is also facing charges in the case and was arrested in March. The court today extended the judicial remand of the veteran journalist, The Nation newspaper reported. The NBA warrant against Sharif comes two days after the Islamabad High Court gave a "last chance" to the former prime minister to surrender and appear before it on September 10 in the Al-Azizia Steel Mills graft case. Sharif has been in London since November last year after the Lahore High Court granted him permission to go abroad for four weeks for treating a heart disease and an immune system disorder. The three-time premier was sentenced to seven years in the Al-Azizia Steel Mills case.

The Pakistan government has already declared Sharif an "absconder" and approached the UK government for his extradition. Adviser to the Prime Minister on Accountability and Interior Shahzad Akbar last week said Sharif's four-week bail on medical grounds had expired in December last year. Akbar had said the government would task the National Accountability Bureau to pursue Sharif's extradition. In a recent interview with ARY News, Prime Minister Imran Khan said his government "regretted" the decision to lift the ban on Sharif.

In May, a picture of Sharif having tea at a London cafe along with his family went viral on social media, sparking a debate on the seriousness of his health condition. The government came under further criticism when last week Sharif's photos surfaced online, showing him strolling in a street, prompting calls from within the ruling Pakistan Tehreek-i-Insaf to bring him back. India, Russia finalise AK-47 203 rifles deal: Report

MOSCOW, SEPT 3/--/India and Russia have finalised a major deal for manufacturing AK-47 203 rifles in India during Defence Minister Rajnath Singh's ongoing visit here, the official Russian media reported today. The AK-47 203 is the latest and most advanced version of the AK-47 rifle, which will replace the Indian Small Arms System (INSAS) 5.56x45 mm assault rifle. The Indian Army has a requirement for around 770,000 AK-47 203 rifles, of which 100,000 will be imported and the rest will be manufactured in India, Russia's state-run Sputnik news agency said. There was no official confirmation from the Indian government on the finalisation of the deal. (PTI)

Video in Black man's suffocation shows cops put hood on him

ROCHESTER, SEPT 3/--/A Black man who had run naked through the streets of a western New York city died of asphyxiation after a group of police officers put a hood over his head, then pressed his face into the pavement for two minutes, according to video and records released Wednesday by the man's family. Daniel Prude died March 30 after he was taken off life support, seven days after the encounter with police in Rochester. His death received no public attention until Wednesday, when his family held a news conference and released police body camera video and written reports they obtained through a public records request.

I placed a phone call for my brother to get help. Not for my brother to get lynched, Prude's brother, Joe Prude, said at a news conference. How did you see him and not directly say, 'The man is defenseless, buck naked on the ground. He's cuffed up already. Come on.' How many more brothers gotta die for society to understand that this needs to stop? The videos show Prude, who had taken off his clothes, complying when police ask him to get on the ground and put his hands behind his back. Prude is agitated and shouting as he sits on the pavement in handcuffs for a few moments as a light snow falls. Give me your gun, I need it, he shouts. Then, they put a white spit hood over his head, a device intended to protect officers from a detainee's saliva. At the time, New York was in the early days of the coronavirus pandemic. Prude demands they remove it. Then the officers slam Prude's head into the street. One officer, who is white, holds his head down against the pavement with both hands, saying calm down and stop spitting. Another officer places a knee on his back.

Trying to kill me! Prude says, his voice becoming muffled and anguished under the hood. OK, stop. I need it. I need it, the prone man begs before his shouts turn to whimpers and grunts. The officers appear to become concerned after he stops moving, falls silent and they notice water coming out of Prude's mouth. My man. You puking? one says. One officer notes that he's been out, naked, in the street for some time. Another remarks, He feels pretty cold. His head had been held down by an officer for just over two minutes, the video shows. The officers then remove the hood and his handcuffs and medics can then be seen performing CPR before he's loaded into an ambulance.

Spit hoods have been scrutinized as a factor in the deaths of several prisoners in the U.S. and other countries in recent years. A medical examiner concluded that Prude's death was a homicide caused by complications of asphyxia in the setting of physical restraint. The report lists excited delirium and acute intoxication by phencyclidine, or PCP, as contributing factors. Prude was from Chicago and had just arrived in Rochester for a visit with his brother. He was kicked off the train before it got to Rochester, in Depew, due to his unruly behavior, according to an internal affairs investigator's report. Rochester police officers took Prude into custody for a mental health evaluation around 7 pm on March 22 for suicidal thoughts -- about eight hours before the encounter that led to his death.

But his brother said he was only at the hospital for a few hours, according to the reports. Police responded again after Joe Prude called 911 at about 3 am to report that his brother had left his house. The city halted its investigation into Prude's death when state Attorney General Letitia James' office began its own investigation in April. Under New York law, deaths of unarmed people in police custody are often turned over to the attorney general's office, rather than handled by local officials. James said

Slammed by virus, France unveils huge economic rescue plan

PARIS, SEPT 3/--/Facing resurgent virus infections, France's government unveiled a 100 billion-euro (USD 118 billion) recovery plan today aimed at creating jobs, saving struggling businesses and yanking the country out of its worst economic slump since World War II.

The massive plan includes money to bring back manufacturing of medical supplies to French factories, develop hydrogen energy, help museums and the cinema industry, train young people for 21st century jobs and hire more staff at unemployment offices. It's an important step for our strategy in the fight against the economic and social consequences of the crisis that hit France, Prime Minister Jean Castex said.

The government spent hundreds of billions of euros in emergency aid as the virus sped across France and filled its once-renowned hospitals earlier this year, prompting a strict two-month lockdown that nearly froze the economy but slowed the spread of infections.

More than 30,600 people with the virus have died in France, among the highest death tolls in Europe after Britain and Italy. France held on, but it is incontestably weakened, Castex

The massive (recovery) plan includes money to bring back manufacturing of medical supplies to French factories, develop hydrogen energy, help museums and the cinema industry, train young people for 21st century jobs and hire more staff at unemployment offices said, and now must pull itself out of an extremely sudden and brutal recession. The economy shrank 13.8 per cent in the second quarter, which has torpedoed President Emmanuel Macron's grand mission to transform the French economy before his first term ends in 2022.

France is again seeing a growth in infections after summer vacations, reporting more than 7,000 virus cases Thursday, the highest daily rate in Europe. That is also well above the several hundred cases a day reported in May and June, when France was emerging from lockdown and testing less.

The number of people in intensive care with the virus is edging up, though is far from the crisis levels of March and April.

Despite the rise, France's schools reopened their doors this week for in-person classes, and authorities are encouraging people to return to work.

And the government insisted Thursday it's time to plan for the post-virus future. In a country that has long struggled to keep unemployment under 10 per cent, the plan aims to create 160,000 jobs next year and restore France's 2019 GDP level by 2022 the year of the next presidential election. It's ambitious but perfectly within our reach, Castex said.

Called France Reboot, the plan will include 40 billion euros (USD 47.3 billion) in aid from a European Union-wide rescue plan approved in July. Castex said the government won't raise the country's already high taxes to pay for the rest, but will issue new treasury bonds instead.

After France financed a mass temporary unemployment scheme to keep people from losing their jobs amid the coronavirus lockdown, Finance Minister Bruno Le Maire promised to continue to do the maximum for workers and businesses.

About a third of the 100 billion euros will go to supporting businesses, a third for jobs and other societal measures and a third for reducing emissions and protecting biodiversity.

Macron has been criticized for not living up to promises to fight climate change, and critics said despite the big price tag, Thursday's new plan still doesn't do enough to catch France up with European neighbors in terms of protecting the environment.

Others expressed concern that the money wouldn't prevent French businesses from declaring bankruptcy or announcing mass layoffs in the coming months. (AP) vote, clearing up confusion about how this election will work, and taking steps to reduce the chances of violence and unrest." Facebook and other social media companies are being scrutinized over how they handle misinformation, given issues with President Donald Trump and other candidates posting false information and Russia's interference in the 2016 White House elections and ongoing attempts to interfere in US politics. Facebook has long been criticized for not fact-checking political ads or limiting how they can be targeted at small groups of people. With the nation divided, and election results potentially taking days or weeks to be finalized, there could be an increased risk of civil unrest across the country," Zuckerberg said.

Facebook moves to target misinformation before election

In July, Trump refused to publicly commit to accepting the results of the upcoming election, as he scoffed at polls that showed him lagging behind rival candidate Joe Biden. That has raised concern over the willingness of Trump and his supporters to abide by election results. Under the new measures, Facebook says it will prohibit politicians and campaigns from running new election ads in the week before the election. However, they can still run existing ads and change how they are targeted. Posts with obvious misinformation on voting policies and the coronavirus pandemic will also be removed. Users can only forward articles to a maximum of five others on Messenger, Facebook's messaging app. The company also will work with Reuters to provide official election results and make the information available both on its platform and with push notifications. After getting caught off-guard by Russia's efforts to interfere in the 2016 election, Facebook, Google, Twitter and others companies put safeguards in place to prevent it from happening again. That includes taking down posts, groups and accounts that engage in coordinated inauthentic behavior" and strengthening verification procedures for political ads. Last year, Twitter banned political ads altogether. Zuckerberg said Facebook had removed more than 100 networks worldwide engaging in such interference over the last few years. Just this week, we took down a network of 13 accounts and two pages that were trying to mislead Americans and amplify division, he said.

But experts and Facebook's own employees say the measures are not enough to stop the spread of misinformation - including from politicians and in the form of edited videos. Facebook had previously drawn criticism for its ads policy that cited freedom of expression as the reason for letting politicians like Trump post false information about voting. (AP)

WASHINGTON, SEPT 3/--/With just two months left until the US Presidential election, Facebook says it is taking more steps to encourage voting, minimize misinformation and reduce the likelihood of post-election civil unrest. The company said Thursday it will restrict new political ads in the week before the election and remove posts that convey misinformation about COVID-19 and voting. It also will attach links to official results to posts from candidates and campaigns declaring premature victories. This election is not going to be business as usual. We all have a responsibility to protect our democracy, Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg said in a post on Thursday. That means helping people register and
